Training class description

Master Gardeners receive an intensive 12-week training program beginning in early January. Students are expected to complete about 10 hours of independent learning time each week using our online platform, in addition to attending a hands-on class each Friday from 8:30 am -1 pm. Weekly classes are held at 1710 Soscol Avenue, Napa.

Topics covered provide a practical course in plant science and horticulture, including:

- Botany, plant pathology and entomology
- Sustainable gardening
- Integrated pest management (IPM)
- Soils and composting
- Disease and insect identification
- Plant problem diagnosis

Cost

There is a charge of $300 to cover the cost of materials, instruction, and supplies. Partial scholarships are available upon request.

Classes are taught by experts in their fields. They include Cooperative Extension advisors, specialists from the University of California, and other qualified presenters. Hands-on learning is emphasized in most training class exercises.

Master Gardeners participate in community events

The mission of the UC Master Gardener program is to extend research-based information on home horticulture, pest management and sustainable landscape practices to the residents of California and be guided by our core values and strategic initiatives.

Volunteer Activities

- Staff the information desk in the University of California Cooperative Extension office
- Answer questions, diagnose plant problems, and provide horticultural information
- Provide information at public meetings, farmers markets, and through talks and demonstrations to local groups
- Teach gardening topics at workshops, library talks, and other events
- Act as resource for community gardening projects
- Staff mobile help desks at local nurseries and gardening centers

What is the Master Gardener's commitment to the program?

Master Gardeners are expected to make at least a 2-year commitment to the program.

Master Gardeners are selected based on their skills, ability, desire to fulfill this commitment, and current needs of the program.

Master Gardener trainee requirements:

- Attend an orientation meeting on November 15
- Complete some preliminary online assignments in November and early December to familiarize yourself with the online learning platform and policies and procedures of Master Gardeners
- Successfully complete the 12-week training class
- Receive fingerprint clearance from the California Department of Justice

First year after graduation:

- Accrue at least 50 volunteer hours to support educational programs

To maintain certification and active status:

In subsequent years master gardeners must complete at least:

- 25 hours volunteering in educational program activities
- and 12 hours continuing education per year.

Benefits of being a UC Master Gardener

- Association with fun, interesting people committed to teaching others about gardening
- Up-to-date horticulture training from University of California experts
- An improved understanding of how plants grow and respond to the environment
